
Tremor of force 2

An earth tremor which was felt over a wide area of the ACT on Saturday night was recorded at a magnitude of two on the Richter scale on the seismograph at the Australian National University.

Dr H. A. Doyle, a fellow in the department of geophysics at the ANU, said yesterday that the centre of the fracture could have been near Tharwa, about 20 miles south of Canberra.
