

BUSH FIRES CANBERRA BLAZE CON- TROLLED

BIG FIRE NEAR BATHURST

SYDNEY, Saturday.

The bush fire at Canberra is well under control, and the pine plantation is not in danger. A hundred men are watching, ready for any possibility, but there is no danger unless the wind changes.

The district about Meadow Flat, near Bathurst, is in the grip of a fire. It has been raging for two days, sweeping large areas of the countryside, and although 100 fire fighters are at work the flames are not yet under control. A number of homesteads were threatened, but the flames were beaten back.
